1	Study Says Photographers are constantly asked for Free Work because people know they love their job	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • A New Phenomenon call 'Passion Exploitation' • • Two Professors at Duke University Business Department wrote a paper, "Understanding Contemporary Forms of Exploitation" • • Study of 2400 participants found that where a person was in an artistic job they were more likely to have acceptance of their exploitation by members of the public than those jobs such as 'clerk' which were not. Bosses exploiting these people were also more likely to feel happy about the exploitation if the person was passionate as opposed to those who were not passionate. • • The researchers found this tendency to exploit passion arises from two beliefs: that work is its own reward, and that the employee would have volunteered anyway. This is an example of compensatory justifications. 	Hmmm, you can all go fuck yourselves	https://fstoppers.com/business/study-claims-photographers-get-asked-free-work-because-everyone-knows-they-love-379724

2	Photographers Protest Facebooks Nudity Policy	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Facebook decided to ban all ‘Artistic Nudity’ • The National Coalition Against Censorship got upset • “In recent months, Facebook has faced scrutiny for its community guidelines and censorship practices. The site’s policies, which make an exception for nudity in paintings and sculptures, exclude photography. Photographers reported having their accounts and photos deleted without warning or explanation” • #WeTheNipple - Spencer Tunick • “We restrict the display of nudity or sexual activity because some people in our community may be sensitive to this type of content. Our nudity policies have become more nuanced over time. [...] While we restrict some images of female breasts that include the nipple, we allow other images, including those depicting acts of protest, women actively engaged in breast-feeding, and photos of post-mastectomy scarring. We also allow photographs of paintings, sculptures, and other art that depicts nude figures” 		https://fstoppers.com/nsfw/photographers-protest-leads-facebook-admitting-it-reviewing-its-policy-nudity-379605
3	Elon Musks Starlink Satellites are pissing off Astrophotographers	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Elon Musk has launched a multitude of Satellites that tour the globe together as a single file line. • It the first of 12,000 that will be launched by the mid 2020s. Yes 12K • The satellites are to provide a low earth internet system for the planet with massive benefits • Bill Kell Professor at University of Alabama says that the issue is that when the satellites reflect they are 50% brighter than the Star Sirius which is the brightest star in the sky. So there for will screw up your images. • Musk said ‘Bollocks’ but then asked engineers to control rotation so that it reduces reflections back to earth 		https://fstoppers.com/astrophotography/will-elon-musk-starlink-satellites-ruin-astrophotography-378226

Qs
1	Shelia - Hornchurch	When I use my on camera flash the results look very 'harsh' is there a way I can make it appear softer and how do the professionals do flash so that people don't look washed out by the flash?
2	Mike Grady - Somerset	What focal length does Image Stabilisation cease to be of any benefit?
3	Krishnan	Why when I upload images to websites do they have a weird pattern across them. Also in Finder, the image preview has the same patterns but when I open the image its fine?
	Graeme	Will there ever be a time where a pro can be on site with 1 camera with a l7fixed lens and do everything
